ESCAPED FROM JAIL.

Edward Morris, who had been indicted by the grand jury for participation in the theft of a barrel of whisky from a Southern Railway car, and William Phillips, who had also been indicted for stealing a horse and buggy belonging to O. E. Elliott, dug their way out of jail and after scaling the wall in the yard made their escape sometime between 2 and 4 o'clock this morning. Upon examination it was seen that the two men dug through a chimney and the east wall of the upper story of the building, and that they cut up blankets by the aid of which they managed to reach the top of the wall. It is understood that a reward of $25 is to be offered for the capture of each of the fugitives.

A GOOD BUSINESS.

It is a well-known fact that a man who looks out for his trade is the man who succeeds. This is the case with Mr. J. J. Kelley, who conducts a first-class restaurant at 1401 King street. Those who know "Jim" Kelley, as he is generally called, will vouch for the fact that he will not misrepresent any goods he sells. Those who have had dealings with him will stand by him as to his straight forwardness. As to the liquor he sells he ought to know, as he has been in business about 10 years and no man's name is higher in the business world. His advertisement in this page tells you what he has to sell and is a gentle reminder that you should look about before you buy.

SENT TO GRAND JURY.

E. M. Bitton who is charged with shooting William Cornell in Alexandria county two weeks ago, tonight was given a preliminary hearing yesterday afternoon before Justice Isaac C. Barrell and was held for the action of the grand jury. Bitton will be tried at the December term of court. The accused was represented by Attorney R. C. L. Moncure. Owing to Cornell's condition he was unable to appear. He is still at the Alexandria Hospital. It is stated that his condition has not been very favorable within the last twenty-four hours. Bitton and Cornell are youths, and the shooting occurred during the celebration of Halloween.

FIRE LAST NIGHT.

The alarm of fire about 9 o'clock last night was caused by the discovery of a fire in a two-story frame house on the north side of what is known as the Graveyard lane, Franklin street extended. The building was considerably damaged before the flames were subdued the roof and most of the second story having been burned. The house belongs to Mr. Charles Churchman, and was occupied by him and his son, Mr. Churchman was sick in the house and had to be carried out. The building was insured.

CHARGED WITH THEFT.

Officer Roberts yesterday arrested a young man named James Johnson, a Washingtonian, at the instance of Beebe Brown, a woman living in a house on north Lee street who alleged that he took a lock of her hair and disposed of it. The youth was brought before the Police Court this morning, but in the absence of witnesses the case was continued until Monday.

The rain interfered somewhat with the attendance.

Among those present were President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who arrived on the grounds at 11.30 o'clock. They were met by Dr. and Mrs. Blackford and some of the teachers of the school and were handsomely entertained. The president expressed a desire to see Talbert Pendleton of whom he said he had read much in the papers. Pendleton was in the infirmary suffering from bruises he had recently sustained in a football game and the president went there and had a pleasant talk with the young athlete and the latter's father. Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt then went to the grounds and showed much interest in the sport, especially in the relay race.

Before leaving the president made a short address giving the boys good advice and among other things said: "Scorn to be guilty of bad practices. Play hard when you play, and when you work, don't play. Get all you can out of the sport. When you take up the serious things of life go at them just as hard. Don't make the mistake of thinking sports are the serious thing in life. Play hard and do your level best to win."

He told them that one of his best friends was John Greenwood a former pupil of the school, and that he took much interest in them all especially Pendleton and Hitch of whose prowess in the games he has read. He also expressed his pleasure in having his son, Quentin at the school. He shook hands with a number of the boys and ladies on the grounds and when he and Mrs. Roosevelt left they were given a hearty college yell.

The sports began at 10 a. m. and the music was by Plitt's orchestra.

MASONIC.

Most of the members of Andrew Jackson Lodge of Masons attended the special meeting held last night for the purpose of receiving Grand Master Joseph W. Eggleston, who paid an official visit to that lodge. A number of visiting Masons were also present.

After the reception of the Grand Master and speeches by the latter and others, an exemplification of the work of the Master Mason's degree followed during which time the Grand Master occupied the "east." About 11 o'clock the members of the lodge and their guests repaired to the dining hall of the Elktion, where Mr. F. O. Sparks, the proprietor, and his assistant, Mr. Fred. Schwab, had prepared a banquet. The rooms were tastefully decorated and the tables had been prepared in the best manner. The following inviting menu was then discussed:

Norfolk oysters (raw), fried oysters, cold turkey, ham and tongue, chicken and potato salad, fancy rolls, celery, pickles, olives, hot slaw, bananas, grapes, oranges, coffee and cigars.

After the banquet, over which Worshipful Master S. P. Fisher, presided, speeches were made by:

Grand Master Eggleston, James E. Alexander, E. E. Downham, J. Edward Shiner, Rev. C. D. Balla, Rev. Edgar Carpenter, J. Wm. May and M. L. Diawiddle.

It was after midnight when the company adjourned.

INVESTIGATING COLLISION.

Steamboat Inspectors Charles W. Wright and Edwin F. White began the investigation yesterday of charges growing out of the collision, against Capt. Henry Kendrick, master and pilot of the ferryboat Lackawanna, and Capt. Frank M. Phillips, master and pilot of the steamer Washington. The investigation took place in the office of the N. & W. Steamboat Company in Washington.

Engineer Henry Chesson testified that he was on watch in the engine room of the Washington on the morning of November 8 when the steamer left Alexandria. The engine was making about 108 revolutions, which would give her a speed of about fifteen miles an hour, when the engine room received from Capt. Phillips in the pilot house "four bells and two jingles," the signal to reverse the engine.

Following the signal the engine made two revolutions when he felt the crash of the two boats coming. He said the Washington had been making full speed ahead four or five minutes before the crash. First Mate James Marmara, Duke, and Quartermaster Howard T. Etheridge, both of the Washington, also testified. The first-named said he did not see the Lackawanna until she suddenly loomed up in front of the Washington. Etheridge testified to the same effect.

As one enters the hall he is at once attracted by the delightful aromas from the refreshment rooms and cannot resist paying his respects. This department is presided over by Miss Ruth Pretyman, president of the Epworth League, and her corps of able assistants, among whom will be found Miss Ruth Smith, Mrs. W. O. Buggett, Mrs. M.
